Reading for Wellbeing

Telling the Story.....

Ann Cleeves

Author

Jane Hartley

Development Co-ordinator

Headlines

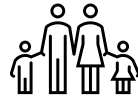

- Formal launch Autumn 2021
- 9 'Community Reading Workers' recruited via Libraries across the region to support access to books, as a means to supporting improved health & wellbeing
- Bespoke induction training delivered by Opening the Book on how to facilitate conversations and maximise engagement in the project
- Different approaches and target communities across each area
 - Workers largely working in community settings
 - Referrals/ engagement via range of sources including health & social care care professionals & word of mouth
- Circa 1500 participants (adults and children) engaged in the project in year 1

Project Engagement

Books provided to facilitate conversations about reading

The project has engaged people of all ages, including those with particular health & wellbeing issues and those living in disadvantaged communities and least likely to access libraries

Group sessions i.e. regular facilitated sessions, taster sessions, drop ins, links with existing community groups

Working in a range of settings including care homes, hospitals, community buildings – taking the project to people

1:1 support and engagement

Family sessions i.e. storytime, school holiday activities, story and craft sessions

Telephone support where required and where face to face contact not possible

Facilitators

- Ann Cleeves – ‘ Brand’ & investment
- NE Health Inequalities Public Health Conference – Platform for engagement
- Investment via Regional Health Partners
- Centralised co-ordination and approach via Regional Steering Group
- Standard Induction Programme via Opening the Book – Buddying System
- The Workers:

The Workers

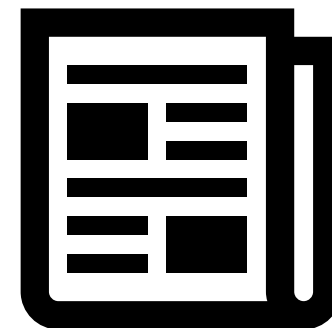

Evaluation Headlines

The North East & North Cumbria ARC Evaluation Report (June 2023) highlighted the following key success factors:

- The importance of stories in providing an opportunity to explore and discuss a wide range of topics and reflect on personal experiences.
- Participation offered a sense of respite to those experiencing emotional hardship.
- Embracing reading for pleasure within group settings enabled participants to build social connections that improved their wellbeing.
- The skill of the community reading workers was key.
- Location of the reading groups mattered.

We also produced a Learning Report in February 2023 giving more detail about the positive impact of our pilot phase

Both reports are on our website <https://readingforwellbeing.org.uk/what-we-do/our-impact/>

Reading for Wellbeing

Our Impact

I have a husband with dementia at home and in 2021 I had breast cancer and went through a horrible, horrible year... It just changes your life really because you don't feel alone. You know you've got something to look forward to every week.

Marie, participant

Reading for

Our Impact

I hadn't left the house for nearly three years because of the pandemic, and I just totally lost confidence in going out at all. I was referred here, and the friendship and everything is brilliant - it's really doing my confidence good.

Jeff, participant

Reading for

Our Impact

It gives you something else to think about... instead of going to bed thinking of all the bad things that's happened you're thinking of the book and it just makes it so much easier to switch off from real life.

Josephine, participant

Our Impact

It's nice to escape... the book club itself does that for me because the people I meet there are totally unrelated to the problems I've had in the last year so I can just be myself with them.

Angela, participant

Reading for

Our Impact

We talk about all kinds of things - issues from the books, and that way people sometimes open up about their own personal situations... and that's trust in the group.

Pauline, participant

Our Impact

I spent a lot of time sat at home just with my children as I was frightened to go out after COVID. I feel I've got more confidence to go and see what's out in the community and find activities.

I'm also sleeping better as I read before I go to bed which makes me feel more settled before going to bed.

Rachel, participant
